My dear Professor Marsh:

I have been hoping I might be able to prepare a paper on "Traces of Estuaries in Stream Land," but my health has not permitted, and so much to my regret. I shall not be present with you at New York. The trip is maturing too much of a tax on my strength and I am following the injunction of my physician to... be cautious and prudent. If you should care for such a papal anti I might be able to furnish it then. I shall read with much interest all that you say and do during the coming week.

Then followed, and think beautifully. The advice you brought me from the hymn "Playfair, Most Sweet," and kind of remembrance, smiling, yea,

Prof. O.C. Marsh
First Nat'l Academy Sam.

My Dear Professor Marsh:

I dropped a note to Colonel Lamont, mentioning the fact that you were in town, and received his morning a note thanking me for the information, and saying that an invitation will be sent for Thursday evening.

I had hoped to call to-day, but will be unable to do so, having an engagement with my wife after four.

Sincerely yours,

My dear Professor [Name]

I take the pleasure

in sending you, with

Mr. Greely's certificate,

a piece of the stone

brought down from

me by Sir [Name] Lockwood

from the highest point in Greenland.

Hacked - The stone was small and gave but a few pieces - I send you one not only as a compromise for previous losses that I caused you, but because I know of no one whom I think would value it more.

My only yours

Hemmett A. Greely

1909 2d St.

Feb. 2 1868 -
I certify that the accompanying stone was brought by Capt. Lockwood in 1882 from Lat. 83° 24' N, on the western coast of Greenland, the most northern point attained by man.
