Cambridge Mass.
Dec 22nd 1873.

My dear March,

According to request I send a list of a few books which I am prepared to sell. Please check any that you may want and return the list.

I send by post mail a copy of my Embryology of Hemichordata.

Don't fail to send me your publications as they appear.

John hints to know.

Faithfully yours,

My dear Tom,

You may understand how opportune and unexpectedly your check came when I tell you I had gone into the bank to borrow $150.00 for one month and while the clerk was making our list and I opened my letter and among them came across the welcome amount and more too. May I trouble you to return the list as I can pick them out. Though I cannot lay your hands on it, will endeavour to make it out from an old list. Many thanks for the copy of Brown's husband shall read it this afternoon.
P.S. liners working these services will be divided amongst all the lines in the land and it will be impossible for them to break through the lines without the consent of the authorities.

If among your correspondents you have any interest in Entomology of Tendrils and Brachiophyllum, I would like to send you a few specimens for further study. I will forward copies to them at your request.

Yours faithfully,
Emanual S. Morse.

Mr. Max Rosen

I have received a note from a near neighbor and any near friend of mine - a bright and sociable one - who would like to see the birds and horses. Both are naturalists and who would fully appreciate them. Any courtesy you may show would be fully appreciated.

Yours faithfully,
Erdi Zurer
May the March

will it be too much

My dear March

I am very much to thank you for the exceedingly interesting schemes of landscapes you have sent out and mention. I shall try and mount a lens in front of the one that shows the continents

in a clear view.

One continuous and raging head

day after day. I am that
