

103 WOODLAND STREET.

Hartford Nov. 21/98

Dear Prof. Marsh:

I enclose a photograph of a stone found on my farm when it has been unnoticed for a long time. It is of red sandstone but quite gray with age. It measures about 5'-6" in length by 2'-10" in width. As a scale to judge the other cutting ^{little} they of light of steps are 4" long by $\frac{3}{4}$ " high and $\frac{3}{4}$ " wide.

Those whose opinion I think entitled to respect say that it is undoubtedly pre-historic, but they are puzzled to explain its character or use.

It came into my mind that possibly you might be able to judge better than anyone else of it, and I have therefore ventured to send you this note.

Should you think it of sufficient interest to make the journey to A. and find to see it, it would give me great pleasure to show it to you at your convenience.

It has been my great pleasure to meet you, since I think at my cousin's the late Mrs. George H. Morgan of 6 East 40th Street, New York.
But it was several years ago.

Should you have any theory in regard to this interesting relic I should be very glad if you would write me.

Ever faithfully yours
Francis Corbin
